Oat Bias Kept Law and Order During Depression

By Irene Ambler

Editor's Note — This article, first printed in the May 28, 1981 issue of the Breeze, captures a picture of law enforcement during the Great Depression.

Law and order was not so big a problem during the Great Depression era of the 1930's. Possibly most folks had enough to do just to keep body and soul together and in trying to find something to put on the table for the next meal to get out and do a lot of law-breaking. Policemen were more respected then than they are now, also. I do not remember ever hearing our policemen being called a "pig," nor did I ever hear of "police brutality." Another thing we didn't hear much about was "rights. Everyone had "rights" so long as they obeyed the law; and when they broke the law, they were put in jail.

Of course, during the Depression there were murders both in Hurricane and throughout the country; but these crimes of violence could usually be attributed to domestic problems or Dale Harper and the Highlanders (inset) perform to the delight of onlookers at the Gazebo on Saturday, May 22nd.

By Ron Allen

Last Saturday's Live at the Gazebo Pop-Up Concert with Dale Harper and the Highlanders was a fun happening for all who have fun watching others have fun.

Fun viewers were able to double their pleasure by stepping across Main Street and grabbing a sandwich and made-on-the-spot iced beverage at Drip's Cafe or latching onto pizza at the Belknap Dough Company.

The concert was the last of the season in Hurricane but not the end to fun watching on Main Street. Beginning June 4, fun watching will return with Food Truck Friday and will continue every Friday until fall. Music is always on the menu during Food Truck Fridays, as will be grab and go treats from Drip's Cafe and Belknap Dough Company.

Foster Parents Recognized

Dear Editor,
May is National Foster Care Month, and the National Youth Advocate Program wants to take this opportunity to thank our foster parents for the work they do caring for the youth and families in West Virginia. By opening their homes and hearts, foster parents play a vital role in helping youth and families in crisis heal.

The National Youth Advocate Program foster families not only provide temporary homes, safety, and nurturing to youth, but they also help birth families by ensuring that youth can be safely reunited with them. And, when reunification is not possible, many of our families choose to adopt the youth who have been placed in their homes, offering permanency and stability the youth may otherwise not know.

The commitment of our foster parents leaves an indelible mark on generations to come. The foster parents are helping to end cycles of neglect, abuse and/or drug addiction and are often helping a youth be the first in his or her family to finish high school or even go to college. Youth leave our foster homes knowing there are many other paths in life than what they've known.

Foster Parents don't get nearly enough thanks or recognition for their efforts. We would like to thank foster parents for sharing your family, your home, giving love, encouragement, and hope to youth and families in need.

Anyone interested in learning more about becoming a foster parent can contact the National Youth Advocate Program at 304-366-5832, visit our website at www.nyap.org/nfcm or email dmcginty@nyap.org. You can also visit the National Youth Advocate-West Virginia page on Facebook. Training to become a foster parent and the home study process are now virtual, making it easier than ever to become a foster parent!

The Way We Were, The Way We Are

By Brenda Burke

Friends...
When I think of friends, I remember the show, "Friends," about the six who stayed together for years... close... I never watched the show back then, but I have watched the episodes on Hulu... also with "Golden Girls" about three women... I laugh out loud at both of these programs just as I always have at "Reba"... funny sitcoms... friends...

As I live in a condo complex in Florida now, I don't imagine I will have the opportunity to make new friends easily. I am still attending church (mine in Indy) online... not comfortable going into the building during Covid... I am also so busy with my family here that there is no need to fill up hours with others.

I have written so many columns about my friends... over and over again... as I said when I write about growing up in Hurricane, my readers can skip this column... it has been done... it will be done again... I am old... I like to remember when...

In elementary school, I had girl friends and friends who were boys... not boyfriends per se... just friends... The most fun we had was when we attended our Sunday School parties at the Casey's home... those were great times... as always, I remember our teachers then (and junior high) were Mr. Casey, Mrs. Dunlap, and Mrs. Comer. I loved them. They were the best ever.

First Baptist Church was a place where we grew up socially, enjoying our times together. Let's don't forget church camp at Cabwaylingo. A week for togetherness... don't know how we would handle the communal restrooms during a pandemic... we would not, of course... or sleeping beside others in those uncomfortable beds... but oh my, the fireside Bible studies... the walks... the pool (I still don't swim)... friendship...

We had friends... Barbara Cottrell... Jane Ellen Henderson, June Lee Handley, Pam Qualls, Becky Foster, Becky Turner, Beverly Higgins, Kay Sergeant, Karen Comer, Karol Clark, John Casey, James Sampson, Steve Casto, Mary Jane Pruitt, and more... attended our church... or at least, if I remember correctly, all of these did... I can't recall all the names, but I bet somewhere there are attendance books that would verify who went and when... I hesitate to type names because I will leave out someone... okay... I did

Hurricane Breeze on Microfilm

If you are looking for an older issue of the Hurricane Breeze, microfilm copies of the paper can be found at both the Putnam County Main Library in Teays Valley and the West Virginia State Archives in Charleston.

The Putnam County Main Library has microfilm copies from 1913 through 1975, while the West Virginia State Archives in Charleston has issues from 1913 through last year.

Sandy Bird... Lorraine Rappold, Linda Searls, Vess Hendricks, Norma Kessler, Dorothy Graves, Jimmy Kelly, David Good, Zula Strickland, Bobby Ashworth, Barbara Byrnside, Joyce Pauley, and others in elementary but not at our church perhaps... what fun times... and our church had hay rides to Camden Park... Won't try to list again...

I would love to hear from those friends... my email is bburke701947@gmail.com... just drop a line...

It would be nice... we are all old now, of course. Just kidding... I am lucky to remember first and last names...

Friends... there were so many of us... church... Y Teens, Rainbow for Girls... all kinds of gatherings. Pajama parties... and the parents... I loved so many of the parents... Becky Turner's mom made the best waffles... Barbara Cottrell's mom was so, so sweet and kind... Becky Foster's mom welcomed us for the best Halloween party... Mrs. Sergeant was like a second mom to many of us... as was Mrs. Searls, my second mom. Mrs. Higgins had some of us in eighth grade for a cheerleading party... the first time I had pizza. The Pruitts... what can I say? The Redskin Inn... I loved Mrs. Handley forever... she died while Mother was in the hospital with cancer at the end... so good to us. My memory is not what it was, but I know we had gatherings at other homes... so many great parents... kids don't do much of that today... parents are busy... we did have a huge pajama party our senior year at the Kesslers... Friends...

We graduated 56 years ago this year... I have heard they have yearly reunions for our class, but I am not sure... the last time I saw many of these "kids" was at the all school reunion in 2010... at the high school... fun... raised so much money for scholarships and show choir... by the way, please feel free to send a donation for scholarship to Putnam County Bank c/o Phyllis Canterbury... would like to give another one next year... I might fly into West Virginia and present it...

Friends... we were not like the television shows... we were ordinary people growing up together with common interests... going our own way... when I watch these shows, I think about my friends from back in the day... the one I have stayed closest with today... and ironically, one of my best friends was one of our teachers in junior high, Flora Lee. I adore her just as we did then... I have the Fabulous Five and if I add the Sensational Six, I have two friends from school... others not from Hurricane... Sensational Six... we text... call... write... stay in touch... Friends forever... we won't ever be on television or in a movie... we won't get together often if ever... however, the way we were is the way we are... friends to the end... caring and loving each other...

personal fights between individuals. I do not remember any crimes during the Depression whereby anyone just killed someone for the fun of it or for the purpose of robbery. There could have been people who were robbed and killed; but I cannot recall an instance such as that.

Some of the local stores were burglarized; but the robbers were caught and sent to jail. In fact, the most outstanding robbery I can remember was when a grocery store was robbed on Putnam Avenue. The robbers were from Huntington. Petty stealing was a problem, but not a very big one. I cannot remember a case which was burglarized, or any armed robbery of any kind in Hurricane during the 1930's. Chicken stealing was big. Just about everyone who had chickens would eventually go to the hen house some morning and find that they had no chickens to feed. Those chicken thieves were very skillful, being able to pluck a fat hen off the roost without evoking a cluck, a cackle or a cockle-doodle-doo. My brother told me about some very well-known boys from respectable families in town who would rob the hen houses of local chicken growers and then sell the chickens to Mr. Lem Burdette, who had a store and who also would from time to time buy back unknowingly some of his very own chickens. My brother DID NOT steal chickens; but if I told you the names of the ones who did, you would be shocked. No, I will not tell you, because some of these chicken-takers are still around; and their high social standing would be besmirched if the truth got out on them.

I did not mean to make this story a saga of chicken-stealing. What I intend to write about is our Depression era police department. The entire police department of the town of Hurricane was composed of ONE man ñ Otis M. "Oat" Bias. Oat was the only town policeman for more years than I can possibly tell. I do know that he kept law in Hurricane through the entire Depression years, as well as (I believe) years before and many, many years after the end of the Great Depression.

Oat died in the 1960's and was well over ninety years of age. If he ever had an automobile, I never saw it. Neither did he have a scanner, radio equipment or a walkie-talkie. He always lived in the center of town and was on duty seven days a week and twenty-four hours a day. I do not remember that he had a vacation or even that he was off sick. He walked all over town on his patrol, but mostly, of course, his beat was on Main Street, where there were usually located three beer parlors. Her had a way of dealing with drunks and those beer parlor habitués who would every often decide to test their strength against another beer drinker. There were lots of fights, lots of arguments and sometimes the little jail behind the present City Hall would have overnight guests. Most usually, though, Oat would separate the fighters, settle them down real good and start them for home. Many a Saturday afternoon we would see Oat supporting a drunk or drunks and walking them up Putnam Avenue toward Hurricane Creek Road (or just near the city limits sign) and telling them in his authoritative voice, "All right, you Laddy Bucks, if I catch you back in town, you are going to jail." He called everybody "Laddy Bucks." The drunks would not try to resist Oat, but usually they would stagger their way on down the Creek or up Teays Valley, glad to be set free to go home instead of the cross bar hotel.

Oat was a strong, fairly large man, with dark hair, dark complexion and a sort of serious scowl on his face. No one dared argue with him, but usually did as he said. It was a different age when Oat Bias was town policeman; and while he handled the job without a great trouble then, he couldn't do it now. I do not believe he would have had any patience with the drug scene, the juvenile delinquency, the speeding and the general society of today. Hurricane was a little town with small ideas; everyone knew everyone for miles around; and actually there was not so much crime and law-breaking. It was a good town, then.

My mother had a little Boston bulldog named Corky during the 1930's. Corky was a house dog; and Mom was just crazy about him as we all were. Well, Corky was prone to act like any other dog, enthusiastically entering into local dog fights and dog romances at each and every opportunity which presented itself. Whenever Corky would get out of the house and run away from home to engage in dog activities, Mom would just go into a tizzy. She was afraid Corky would get killed. Oat Bias knew how much Mom liked corky; and during spring and fall seasons he would faithfully watch out for Corky. Corky, for some reason or other, would always end up on the main drag down in the center of Main Street or Virginia Avenue, or somewhere near the town jail. We got so we could depend on a telephone call from Oat concerning the incarceration of Corky. Now, Oat had a slight speech impediment; ad he called Corky "Cawky." The phone would ring and there would be the deep voice of the town marshal, saying, "Mrs. Forth, I've got Cawky down there in jail." He would actually put Corky behind bars, keeping him there until we would go after him and bring him back home. I believe that Oat knew every dog in town and knew each by name.

Currently, in my series about the town's businesses during the Depression years I have been writing about local businesses and business people; but I also have to include the professions. Oat Bias was a professional policeman. I do not remember that he ever did any other kind of work except that of town cop. He was the police department from my earliest recollection; but I have no way of knowing how many years he served in that position. Oat and his wife had two sons ñ Virgil and Charles. Virgil was one of the first school bus drivers in this county. In the very early 1930's the county school system, which had previously been operated on a district basis, was changed to what was called the "County Unit Plan." At that time the transporting of students was done on a county wide basis. Virgil was a bus driver for many years; and he also served as a member of the House of Delegates. He has been dead for many years. The other son, Charles, now lives in Florida.

Possibly the most serious phase of law enforcement during those long-ago Depression years was that of moonshining and bootlegging. As you know, prohibition was repealed during the early years of Franklin D. Roosevelt's first term of office. Moonshining, which had been a time-honored profession of this area, had long been flourishing in the hollers and on the hills of, not only Putnam County, but in most other southern and mountain states, and the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment had little, if any, effect on the moonshiners and their profession. There was plenty of moonshining going on right around Hurricane and plenty of bootlegging the white lightning after it had been made. Lots of men who were too proud to take charity (which is what they called relief) fed and clothed their families by making moonshine; and many others supported their families by bootlegging the finished product. I knew a lot of moonshiners and also some of the bootleggers. I liked them all; they were just like other people; and they had a strict code of honor and honesty that was not found in some of the people who condemned them. I never could see why it was wrong for an individual to make and sell good whiskey to support his family and why it was right for a state to sell it. It seems that it was not really a moral or legal issue, but was rather just another way for the state to collect taxes. Well, I never did use the booze in any form; but I never could see where the payment of taxes could whitewash something that was supposed to be wrong. I still can't.

I can remember one time when a man on High School Avenue (he doesn't live there now) had a bathtub full of "Old Hen," which was the name for mash made from corn chop, sugar and I don't know what else. The mash was for making a batch of booze. The odors permeating the neighborhood evidently shook up some pious neighbor; and the neighbor had called the law. It happened just before noon; and we were in school close by. Well, the revenue agents emptied the mash in the man's backyard; and it didn't take us long to know that there was a lot of excitement over on the lower end of High School Avenue. We had an our for noon and we all went running over there to see what was so funny and exciting. It so happened that one of the neighbors had a flock of chickens which was allowed to run loose, as was the custom then. The chickens, which had probably been existing from what they could pick up off the soil, naturally just about went crazy over that bathtub full of corn chop, which was also nice and sweet; and was probably delicious if you were a chicken.

Did you ever see a drunk chicken? Well, I have. In fact, I as well as many other Hurricane residents saw a whole flock of drunk, clucking, cackling, crowning, staggering chickens. I swear that they were drunk as mojos. There was only one rooster in that flock; and I'll bet he had a rooster-sized hangover the next day. He was so drunk that he staggered from one end of that back yard to the other, falling and making peculiar noises for quite a long time, rising up valiantly and taking another bill full of that alcoholic delicacy.

Hurricane 10-Year-Old to Represent State at World Championship

"God always has a plan to turn bad things into good," Hodge said. "For example, last year we were not able to shoot for Nationals because of Covid. But this year, I shot at Nationals and did well which qualified me for the World Championship. God also gave me a wonderful coach named Justin Brooks. He has done an awesome job guiding me through my archery career. I am really excited to go to Myrtle Beach for the championship,"

Hodge concluded.

Lenon's parents, Tony and Jessica Hodge are very excited for him as well. "We are so incredibly proud of Lenon's hard work and accomplishments. God has blessed him with an amazing talent and we can't wait to watch him use his gift on the world stage," said Jessica Hodge.

The NASP World Championship will take place June 10-12 in Myrtle Beach, SC. Hodge is planning his trip now and is expected to be joined by his coach.

for more than 70 years to the late Eloise Erwin Thompson who passed away in 2019 at the age of 96. "I think it's great to be able to celebrate my 100th birthday and be recognized as an Outstanding Democrat. It just makes me feel like I'm ready to start over." added Judge Thompson.

PUTNAM ROTARY NEWS

Major Commercial Development Slated for Teays Valley

By Sam Sentelle

Putnam county commissioner Andy Skidmore announced to Rotarians on May 18 plans for a 400-acre commercial development in Scott Depot. The site will be at the junction of I-64 and US 35 with access for several businesses.

Logging is now underway, he said, with excavation to follow for a 300-acre flat area. A large transportation plaza is planned by the primary lease holder with commercial properties to follow.

The commission is also planning a major upgrade to 5-G internet service with optic fiber cable extensions in the area, he added. Putnam now has only one provider, and many parts of the county lack fiber access or the service is inadequate.

"Companies are not putting their profits back into infrastructure," he said. "They are taking the profits out of the state," he said, "and failing to repair and improve their infrastructure."

are treating their cable services as a utility. They've built their own fiber network, and we feel like we can do that in Putnam county," he said.

"We plan to buy materials next week," he said, "and to turn dirt by July." The commission approved an agreement for planning with S&S Engineering in A[ro; Alpha Technologies will undertake installation of cable.

Both firms are based in Putnam county.

During the pandemic, many people have been working from their home, and some expect to continue.

With reliable broadband access, the need for a commute to Charleston or Huntington will be less.

The county commission would license the access service as a utility, and with local control local customers will have better access to resolve problems.

Commissioner Skidmore has visited a community with such an arrangement. "They are able to provide 5-G service," he said, "for $50 a month."

People and Words

By Velma Kitchens of Culloden

As I have said before, I love to read quotes by famous people, but some folks are not famous but they say good things. I worked with a girl who said when she was growing up her mom had some home remedies for injuries. This girl hurt her ankle and her mom put slices of bacon around her ankle. She said all went well until all the dogs in the neighborhood started chasing her. When she told me that, I laughed until tears came down my cheeks. She is a special person. She had a baby at 40 and had four other children. God blesses those who really want children and treat them right.

Another girl told me while getting gas months ago that she felt led to tell me that Jesus loves me. I got so excited and told her thanks and that I had not had the best of times that day, but God makes the day and we need to rejoice in it. That girl obeyed the spirit of the Lord and helped me tremendously. Like I said, some not famous people say things that are so helpful along this road we call life.

I also had a man tell me that a doctor didn't do anything for him, and he thinks he should just pay half a co-pay. He was joking, but I thought it was worth mentioning. Another lady said use Dial soap for leg cramps, but I don't know to lather or not to lather; do you just rub dry soap on the leg? And by the way, most cramps happen at night in bed, so by the time you go get the Dial soap all the cramp is gone. But my how it hurts!

I have a co-worker who has a sister who lived in California for years and she is a lawyer. I spoke with her one day and I was asking about some things in her life. She was invited to a party, and she is tall, and it was crowded. She said the only thing she could see was Kenny G's bald spot. Like I say, people say stuff that is worth repeating. I think it was a four hour dinner, and she said she could have eaten and been home in an hour, but it was work. When she first went to Los Angeles, her co-workers told her she was to pale and needed a new hairstyle. She didn't think so. She said LA is different if you work at a business that is "up there," but she didn't care. She is a West Virginia girl at heart. They told her to get a spray tan and have her hair dyed. She didn't do it, so I guess they liked her work.

The next time I write, I am going to tell you about the ice storm in February, or was it March? Really all runs together. That was an adventure, but we survived.

Ministry to Unbelievers

Romans 15:15-27

In the text before us, Paul comments upon the things which he has written in this epistle. In verse 15, the apostle states that he has written boldly. Paul's words suggest that he may have written more boldly in this epistle than the manner in which he wrote in his previous epistles.

Romans reads differently than Paul's epistles to believers at Corinth or Galatia or Ephesus and elsewhere. In Romans, Paul cites passages from the books of Moses, the Psalms, and from the prophets more than fifty times, twice the total of all passages cited in his other epistles combined. In verse 14, the apostle makes it clear that his boldness was not triggered by any lack of goodness or knowledge on the part of the Romans. Paul's reason for boldness is not to correct. His boldness stems from the grace which God has given him. His boldness is linked to his having been chosen by God to deliver the gospel to the Gentiles.

Paul states that his boldness is because of the grace which God has given to him. God revealed to Paul that he was chosen to be the minister of Jesus Christ to bring good news (the gospel of God) to the Gentiles such that "the offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost" (v. 16).

The offering up of the Gentiles is the offering up of spiritual sacrifices to God by the Gentiles which sacrifices are holy and acceptable (see I Pet. 2:5, Rom. 12:2). Neither Jew nor Gentile possesses the capacity to manufacture anything that is holy and acceptable. No man, Paul included, possesses this ability. Paul's role was to deliver the gospel to the Gentiles such that they might hear, believe and receive. Upon believing, one receives the Comforter (the Holy Spirit) who acts as an intercessor of prayers. The Holy Spirit helps believers overcome our failings by interpreting our innermost feelings (Rom. 8:26). God the Father sees only that which the Holy Spirit has filtered — that which is holy and acceptable.

Awareness of God's grace was given to Paul by revelation from God such that His purposes might be realized. It is and was by revelation that Paul was given the understanding necessary to expound upon that which is recorded in the books of Moses and the Psalms and upon the words of the prophets. Moses, the Psalms, and the prophets, all proclaim the coming of a time in which God shall establish a new relationship with a people who are not a people. The Gentiles are that people.

In verses 17, Paul states that he has cause to glory through Jesus Christ in "those things which pertain to God." Those things which pertain to God most certainly include the fulfillment of that which Moses and the prophets spoke. Paul was the chosen vessel to be the apostle to the Gentiles. Paul does not glory in that which he has done. He glories in that which Christ has done by him (v. 18). Paul is glorying in the work of God the Son.

Paul states that his ministry was powered by "mighty signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God" (v. 19). Paul's boldness in writing that which he wrote is, likewise, powered by the Holy Spirit. It is not by coincidence that Paul links his boldness in writing to his preaching of the gospel in places where it had never before been preached (v. 20-21). Paul's epistle and the grace which he received work together for God's purposes.

In verse 23, Paul states that he has no more place in these parts. These parts consist of the region extending from Jerusalem to Illyricum (see v. 19). Paul's presence is no longer needed there because the people who were no people from Jerusalem to Illyricum had heard and received understanding (see v. 21).

Paul states his great longstanding desire to visit them (v. 23) and to be "brought on my way thitherward by you" (v. 24). Thitherward is Spain, Paul's destination after visiting Rome. Paul was moved by the Holy Spirit to ask believers in Rome assist in bringing the gospel to Spain.

Paul states that he must first go to Jerusalem to deliver a donation which will be used to meet the material needs of the saints there (v. 25-27). The Gentile believers in Macedonia and Achaia were moved to send a monetary gift which was designated to meeting a material need. Paul states that believers, once empowered by the Holy Spirit to offer up acceptable spiritual gifts, are also obligated to provide for the material needs of other believers.

The epistle to the Romans is for believers in every place and of every era. All believers are to assist in bringing the gospel to people who are no people such that they, too, may offer up that which is holy and acceptable. It is our reasonable service (Rom. 12:1).

RUTH PAULINE WHITTINGTON

Ruth passed away at home with her loving daughters by her side on May 23rd, 2021.

She was born February 24, 1923 in Shelbyville, Indiana to Zella (Knouse) Anderson, and Hallard Anderson. Ruth was one of four children, and was predeceased by her sister Marietta, brother Cleo, and younger brother Gerald, who passed away in infancy. Ruth spent her childhood in Shelbyville and in her teens moved to Columbus Ohio with her mother. She worked for Curtiss-Wright during the war, then Ohio Bell as a telephone operator, then Timken Company where she met and married her husband of 40 years, Wilbur Clarke Whittington, who passed away in 1999.

Ruth was an independent and self-reliant woman, who was dedicated to her family and friends. She loved to read, do jigsaw puzzles, sudoku puzzles, and to take care of her yard. Though quiet and shy, she didn't hesitate to speak her mind when she felt the need. Her quiet spirituality and resilience guided her through life's difficulties and triumphs. Ruth leaves behind, her daughters Alicia "Lisa" Devine (Kevin), and Sandra Lytle; Granddaughters: Amanda Bordage (Kevin), Bree Lytle (Renee Owdom) and Samantha Devine (Nate Pubentz); and her great-grandson Elliott Bordage, with another great-grandchild on the way. Ruth will be dearly missed by all who knew and loved her.

A graveside memorial service will be held at 1:00 P.M. on Tuesday, June 1, 2021, in the Whittington section of Tucker Cemetery in Grimms Landing, with a special reading led by cousin, Brent Null officiating. The funeral procession will leave Raynes Funeral Home, Buffalo at 12:30 P.M.

Faith Missionary Baptist 54th Anniversary

Faith Missionary Baptist Church held its first service on June 4, 1967. Later that summer they called Rev. John Hoskins to serve as their first pastor. He served until his death 35 years later. The church is celebrating its 54th anniversary on Sunday June 6 at the 11:00 AM service. The preacher for the day will be Dr. Dan Anderson, president of Appalachian Bible College near Beckley, who has served in that capacity since 1983. While the college has made tremendous progress on many fronts under his presidency, it is his passion for the cause of Christ as exemplified in his servant/leadership that has characterized his ministry. He has been a mentor and friend who has encouraged many in the service of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Faith Missionary Baptist Church is located at 701 West MacCorkle Avenue one mile west of Winfield Rd. near St. Albans. FMBC is an independent, fundamental Bible believing church. For more information
