WV American Water Customers to See 8% Rate Increase

By Ron Allen

State regulators have approved an 8 percent increase in water and sewer rates for the average customers of the West Virginia-American Water Co. The new rates became effective Saturday, February 24th.

Under its 58-page ruling, the Public Service Commission of West Virginia said the average water bill (3,400 gallon usage) should increase by $5.69 a month, and sewer bills should increase by $5.59 a month.

The company filed for a 22.5 percent increase in rates on May 1, 2023, or a total of $41.2 million. After the Commission allocated a portion of sewer costs to the water operations, the water increase rose to $43 million, or 24 percent.

The company's original $51 million increase application proposed a $10 million decrease in its Distribution System Improvement Charge (DSIC), which is used to pay to improve the systems distribution lines and systems.

The net effect of the Commission's decision released Saturday is to approve a $15 million revenue increase, or an 8 percent increase in rates, instead of 24 percent, after the elimination of the DSIC charge and an allocation of some sewer rates to water.

The impact on a residential customer using 3,400 gallons of water per month will take the monthly water bill from $71.10 to $76.79.

Water customers of the City of Hurricane, by comparison, are charged $55.62 for 3,400 gallon usage under the rates approved earlier this year. Putnam PSD customers, using 3,400 gallons, currently see $32.15 monthly bills.

For sewer operations, the West Virginia American originally requested an increase of approximately $471,000, or approximately 25 percent. The Commission order approved a net revenue increase of approximately $147,000. The impact on a residential customer using 3,400 gallons of water per month will be take the average monthly sewer bill from $69.92 to $75.51.

The City of Hurricane monthly sewer bill for 3,400 gallon water usage is $42.85 and the Putnam PSD sewer bill for this usage is $43.83.

Gardening the Whole Year Long

Mark Hull inspects the onions and carrots which he grew under the protective cover of a hoop house.

By Ron Allen

The design of the two domed structures adjacent to Mark Hull's garden plot on Hurricane Creek Road resemble that of high tunnels used by commercial growers to produce early season offerings. The structures are hoop houses which cover raised beds.

For gardeners, each bite of home grown produce is its own reward. While Hull could use his hoop houses to get a jump on an early garden, he has found that he can also utilize them to grow carrots, onions, beets, garlic, celery, and lettuce all year long. He can enjoy a home grown gardening reward every month of the year.

After years of struggling without success to grow beets and carrots in his regular garden, he is now enjoying both thanks to the hoop houses which he built from scratch using treated lumber, PCV piping, and heavy duty polyethylene film.

His attempt at growing celery this winter did not go well. "It was doing great until we had a day in December in which the temperature hit 70°. I don't know how high it got in the hoop house, but it was hot enough to kill it," he said. The mishap occurred just as the celery was getting table ready.

It will be a while before this year's hoop house carrots will be ready for picking. That said, Mark is still enjoying carrots which his wife Peggy canned in 2023.

Cannings from the Hull garden include beans, beets, and tomatoes.

The kale and turnips which Hull planted last year

The Comeback Club: Bridging The Gender Gap in Workforce Reintegration

The Comeback Club, an initiative of the Putnam County Chamber of Commerce and the Putnam Chamber Network of Women, is on a mission to transform the landscape of workforce reintegration for women. With a vision of fostering a future where career breaks no longer pose barriers to professional success, The Comeback Club is dedicated to bridging the gender gap in employment and leadership roles.

Despite great strides, women still face significant challenges when reentering the workforce after taking career breaks, often resulting in setbacks in their professional trajectories. Factors such as caregiving responsibilities, family commitments, and personal development endeavors can interrupt a woman's career progression, leading to gaps in employment and a loss of confidence.

The Comeback Club recognizes these hurdles and is committed to providing comprehensive support to women navigating their return to work. Through a range of resources, guidance, and mentorship programs, The Comeback Club aims to empower women to confidently reintegrate into the workforce and reclaim their positions in leadership and decision-making roles.

"At The Comeback Club, we believe that every woman deserves the opportunity to thrive in her career, regardless of any breaks she may have taken along the way," said Ashley Alford Glance, President of the Putnam Chamber, "Our mission is to dismantle the barriers that hinder workforce reintegration and create a more inclusive and equitable environment where all women can flourish professionally."

Through partner organizations such as Marshall University CORE, Putnam Adult Education

Center, Putnam County Library and Dress for Success River Cities, The Comeback Club offers tailored resources and support networks designed to address the unique needs of women returning to work after career breaks. From resume workshops, skill-building sessions to networking events and mentorship programs, in addition to job placement assistance, participants receive personalized assistance to re-enter the workforce with confidence and competence.

The Comeback Club is not only about reentering the workforce; it's about empowering women to reclaim their dreams and rewrite their career narratives. West Virginia Ministry of Advocacy and Work Camps in Its 20th Year Of Helping Families

Thousands of unsung non-profit organizations fill the gaps for people that government and the private sector cannot meet. For the past 20 years, the West Virginia Ministry of Advocacy and Work Camps (WVMAW) has focused on leveraging community and volunteer resources to offer disaster relief and combat poverty through home repairs and other assistance.

WVMAW is a 501(c)(3) organization that serves families across West Virginia who suffer from various kinds of disaster. The organization works with partners from in-state and out of state to make a difference in the lives of the families they support. Families are identified by the United Way of Central West Virginia, Nicholas County Community Action, churches, or by other entities. WVMAW Executive Director Peyton Ballard, a Nicholas County native, said the organization receives federal and state disaster support during floods or hurricanes but relies mostly on private donations.

Ballard said the annual operating budget is roughly $250,000 annually, with WVMAW carrying out 50 projects with 25 teams to support their completion. "Most of our funding goes toward supplies and equipment to carry out essential projects to serve WV families," he said. "We have the potential to do much more, and we have some funding and partnership strategies that could double or triple our impact."

Some of the recent initiatives conducted by WVMAW teams included:

- Roof replacement project in Ansted, WV for a family experiencing flooding and leaks.
- Mobile home donated by WVMAW donor to rehome local family in Summersville, WV area.
- Wheelchair ramps for residences housing a family member with disabilities.

"Where there is a will, there is a way," said Derek Hudson, Chairman of the board of directors of WVMAW. "When someone or a community is in need, we lean on our support from our site partners, communities, and dedicated staff to find resources and are able to assemble a skilled team to lend a helping hand." He said a trained project manager is assigned to each project and stays with the job and team from start to finish.

Hudson, who resides in Charleston, praised the communities, universities, and church groups who mobilize to assist others. He

The Way We Were, The Way We Are

By Brenda Burke

My friends know that I am somewhat reclusive. I am happy in this little condo doing my thing. I have a routine... I clean this tiny home every day... some say I am a germophobe... so be it... I clean and do laundry daily. I walk my steps/miles... every one is painful, but I did reach my goal last year... 1,500 miles... I digress... I walk... I walk... I keep up with my correspondence... cards and letters... my puzzle book is in my hand often... jigsaw puzzles on my tiny table... I journal... comments and prayers... several times a day... I work on my budget... emails and texts... studying French, along with my granddaughter... work with grandkids... school... prayer and Bible study... television shows on Hulu or You Tube... mysteries usually... read and review a "million" books... just some of my activities... I do not get bored... I always have something to do... I cook each day for myself... my family has too many allergies, so my daughter-in-law does their food.

Shopping is something I loved when my kids were growing up... when I lived close to my granddaughters... it is not something I like anymore unless one of them is around to go with me. Publix, my grocery... Dollar General... Dollar Tree... all near me... and I go about 3-4 miles to Target when I have a list... Target has to be my favorite store... my granddaughter and I went on Thursdays when I lived in Indiana... Shopping is just something I have to do... not something I do for fun much anymore...

There is a pool here at the complex... I get in there with my daughter occasionally... and of course, I walk on the ocean... that being said, I am pretty happy doing my thing at home... even though it is much smaller than most I have had had... it is home...

My grandsons are in and out often... we work together on school projects; we play games; we go out to the tennis court... we walk... however, for quite awhile, those little boys have been sick off and on... and they can't be around Nana when they are not up to par... this is the season for colds, etc... they make my life better... each time one of them comes to the patio door, Nana grins... hugs... and is happy... my son rides his bike over or my daughter-in-law stops in with the boys.

My sweet daughter visits me faithfully... she stays from one to two weeks... we also have our routine... places we go and things we do... she comes every other month or more often from Indiana...

We have places we like to eat... of course, we eat at home often, but there are restaurants we really enjoy... we eat in them or bring the food home. Sometimes, we pick up food and eat at the ocean. Watching the waves. Caroline's Bakery has the best quiche and veggie sandwiches... Panera has some of our favorites... there is a Mexican restaurant in Dunedin that is the best ever... Speaking of Dunedin, we found a new place (to us) this last time... January... they have great salads and sandwiches and soup... yum... First Watch... healthy great food... and let us not forget our little drive in... hush puppies... pizza from Domino's... the thin crust with pineapples... these are just some of our "eating" places... we usually get two miles out of each one we order...

Lest my readers think all we do is eat... we also take books to the little "library houses" in all directions from us... up the road... down the road... here in Palm Harbor... we like to think of those who pick up those books and enjoy reading... we go to the ocean... the parks that are on the ocean... Target, of course... the grocery... sometimes used book stores... we might go down to Clearwater and run into the shoe store or Old Navy... we like Red Robin... great veggie burgers... T J Maxx or Ross... other discount stores...

Kathy and I watch house shows... we discuss books and politics... religion... family... memories... vacations... we walk... she likes the pool better than I... we keep busy... or not... we are friends... we have fun together... yes, we have our routine... we play games with the boys... visit with those grandsons we adore... her nephews... spend time with her brother and sister-in-law... all in all... our lives are good... she accepts the fact that her mom likes to go and get home... that I have a routine... that I have a schedule I keep... that I am yes, somewhat of a recluse in my old age...

I am thankful for each day... I asked my sweet friend, the other day, what is the one thing we think of when we awaken in the morning... "One more day..." This is the sweetest friend... from elementary school... yes... one more day, Lord, one more day... That is all I am asking... one more day... because the way we were is the way we are... we do not have to go go go... we can rest... stay... relax... and meditate... praying is a huge part of my life... along with my texting prayer friends... and family... thank you, Lord, for one more day... I must add that Florida has so many healthy places to eat... and if you want something healthy in WV, I suggest Panera... have fun... think of me as you eat your favorite Panera...

THIS WEEK IN THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES

For the week ending Feb. 23, 2024

Members of the West Virginia House of Delegates are continuing to move bills through committees and votes on the House floor as legislative deadlines loom.

House Bill 5540, also known as "Laken's Law," passed the full House by a unanimous vote Feb. 20. The measure would require annual education about the health dangers of substance abuse, available resources to reduce youth substance use, the specific dangers of fentanyl, heroin and opioids as well as the use of opioid reversal drugs.

The bill's lead sponsor, Delegate Jeff Stephens, R-Marshall, is a public school teacher who said he sees the effects of opioids and other drugs every day.

"Being proactive instead of reactive in battling this drug epidemic is how we can help turn the tide," Stephens said. "This crisis did not overtake our communities overnight. It's going to take more than just targeting dollars and doctors to change the culture these opioids created."

The bill is already moving through the Senate and on track for a vote early next week.

Members voted unanimously Friday to double the criminal penalty for anyone found guilty of sexual assault on a minor. The measure, House Bill 5235, also would clarify that failure to report sexual assault, sexual abuse or sexual exploitation of a child is a felony. It now goes to the Senate for consideration.

The House Finance Committee has advanced several bills that would put more money in West Virginians' pockets. House Bill 4883 would increase the annual salaries for West Virginia State Police personnel, teachers and school service personnel by $2,900, $2,460 and $140, respectively. House Bill 4734 would adjust the salaries of all non-uniformed, full-time Division of Corrections and Rehabilitation staff. That would be in addition to the pay raise in the governor's proposed budget.

Another unanimous vote this week would continue bringing down West Virginians' taxes. House Bill 4880 passed the House Thursday. It would eliminate the state income tax on social security benefits through a three-year phase-out. Under this proposal, like the one enacted in 2019, all the taxable social security benefits received in 2026 and beyond would be exempt from tax.

"This would provide an immediate tax reduction of 35 percent, then 65 percent the next year until the elimination in the third year and phasing it in is a softer way to be sure the budget remains stable, and the state can maintain its obligations," said House Majority Leader Eric Householder, R-Berkeley. "West Virginia has 50,000 retirees and any time we can give tax relief to our citizens it's a great day for West Virginia."

A total of 168 House bills have passed the full House and 36 bills have completed the legislative process. The session ends at midnight Saturday, March 9.

Cocoons

By Velma Kitchens of Culloden

Some of you who are reading this know exactly what I am writing about. The definition that I am using for "cocoon" is this: "envelop or surround in a protective or comforting way." Many of us, especially women, have a special place that we like to go to in our homes and have a quiet time with the Lord: a book, a phone call to a friend, or just being alone from all the drama in the world. Many young women who have husbands and children often never have time for their cocoon, but it will come. The days of rushing throughout the day to take care of your little ones and your family and all their needs will come to an end and then it will be just you and your husband. Everyone needs a cocoon, especially with the Lord and His word. You know where your cocoon is.

I spoke with someone and they said their quiet time is before bedtime to read. Reading is a good thing as we can learn from reading. I need to start on some books learning other things in my life. I am studying German on Duolingo on my phone. I do pretty well, but those alerts to remind me bother me. I want to do the lessons when convenient for me, not for Duolingo. Haha.

If you do not have a cocoon, you can have one in your mind as you meditate of the things of God and pray for what is in your heart. Your cocoon does not have to be visible; it can be within.

While all of us like to feel comfort and safe, we know we can find safety in the Lord because safety is of the Lord, as He says in His word.

Think of all the women and children who do not have a place of comfort and protection or a life of peace. We all need to be more mindful of those who have no refuge. Our Sunday school teacher said years ago that our homes should be a place of peace, quietness and rest after dealing with this old world every day. I believe that to be true.

Guilt-Free, Superfruit Snacking Sweet Treats Made to Permissibly Indulge

(Family Features) For many, enjoying a small indulgence can serve as a reward for a job well done or a mood-boosting pick-me-up. In fact, mindful snacking is on-trend for a majority of consumers.

According to Mondelez International's Fourth Annual State of Snacking Global Consumer Trends Study, 78% are choosing small indulgences to pamper themselves and 68% are checking nutrition labels on snacks.

With today's changing palates and the growing demand for sour, less sweet foods and beverages, a superfruit like tart cherries can help snackers permissibly indulge without the guilt. Primarily grown on small family farms in the United States, Montmorency tart cherries – also referred to as sour cherries – are available year-round in dried, juice and juice concentrate, canned and frozen forms.

More than 110 scientific research studies show Montmorency tart cherries are a superfruit. In addition to their sweet-sour taste and unique nutrient profile, research suggests tart cherries – one of the few natural food sources of melatonin – may help improve sleep, aid in exercise recovery, reduce inflammation, ease arthritis symptoms, improve gut health and promote heart health. In fact, in one study published in the "European Journal of Nutrition," adults who drank Montmorency tart cherry juice slept about 40 minutes longer on average and had up to a 6% increase in sleep efficiency.

While increasingly featured in functional beverages and health-positioned foods, tart cherries can also add drool-worthy flavor to superfruit-infused snacks, such as these Tart Cherry Superfood Banana Splits. Plus, using tart cherries as a favorite ingredient in recipes like these adds a health halo to sweets – reinforcing the trend of permissible indulgences.

As an ideal superfruit snack that makes snacking more satisfying, tart cherries provide delicious flavor and potential health benefits in these recipes and beyond so you can savor the moment and cherish every bite.

WHO SHOULD WORSHIP?

On a church bulletin board a sign was posted: "Do come in - trespassers will be forgiven". Has there ever been a time that you felt unworthy of God? If the answer is "yes", it's not surprising; God's Word tells us that we all have sinned. But, through divine grace, we are all loved and welcomed equally. God's house is not a gallery for the display of perfection but a school for the education of the imperfect. Who should worship? All of us... regularly...in our local house of worship.

Jesus' Claim to Deity

John 8:31-38, 48-56, 58-59

"Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him . . ." (v. 31). The audience which Jesus addressed did not believe on Him in the sense that New Testament believers believe on Him. This audience heard the New Testament for the very first time when Jesus said, "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." They did not understand what it meant to be made free. They held the view that they were the promised seed of Abraham and were never in bondage to any man.

Jesus told them that they, as the servants of sin, could not claim residency in the house (v. 35). The house is that of God the Father. Residency is dependent upon keeping the law of Moses. The law makes all men servants of sin because no man can keep the law. The Son alone is not a servant of sin and has made New Testament believers free in that He has fulfilled the law for them.

In verse 38, Jesus stated that He speaks of that which He has seen with "my Father" and that they do that which they have seen of their father. They sought to kill Jesus (v. 37). In verse 39, Jesus told them that they were not the sons of Abraham because they did not do the works of Abraham. Jesus' words did not sit well with the Jews and they accused Jesus of being a Samaritan and being demon possessed (v. 48).

Believers see the Father through the Son (Jn. 14:9). Jesus' reply in verses 49-51 is that of God the Father. God the Father is honored by God the Son. God the Father is dishonored by them who dishonor the Son. God the Son does not seek personal glory. The glory which the Son seeks is the glory of the Father who judges.

In verse 51, Jesus states the judgment of the Father. One who keeps the sayings of the Son honors the Father. One who honors the Father shall live. Those who honor the Son shall never see death because they honor the Father. One honors the Father by keeping the sayings of the Son. The Son's focus is ever upon the Father.

The Jews to whom Jesus spoke did not hear that which believers hear. They did not see the Father through the Son because they did not recognize the Son. They saw Jesus making Himself greater than Abraham and greater than the prophets. They saw Jesus as doing the very thing which they did. They assumed a position of righteousness which they obtained through that which they did. They sought to honor themselves. They did not seek to honor the Father. Only those who seek to honor the Father are given the eyes to see the Son. They did not see the Son as honoring the Father when He said, "If a man keep my saying, he shall never taste death." They saw Jesus through the eyes of them who seek to attain righteousness through works.

Again, believers see God the Father in Jesus' response to the charge that He (Jesus) sought to honor Himself. The Son is not honored by the Son. The Son is honored by the Father. The Father spoke through the Son when the Son said, ". . . ye say, that he is your God: Yet ye have not known him" (v. 54, 55). God the Son is not a liar. He speaks for God the Father. God the Father and God the Son give witness that the Jews did not know the Father.

Earlier in chapter 8, Jesus stated that the Jews were not the sons of Abraham because they did not do the works of Abraham. In verse 56, Jesus stated, "Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day: and he saw it, and was glad." Believers know why Abraham rejoiced "to see my day". He rejoiced because "my day" was the day in which God the Father fulfilled the promise He gave to Abraham in Genesis 12:3 that "in thee" all families of the earth would be blessed. The day which Abraham saw and rejoiced for seeing was future to Abraham's life span in the flesh. Abraham saw the future fulfillment of the blessing that all families of the earth would receive. Abraham saw members of every family of the earth be blessed as he had been blessed.

Believers know what Abraham saw. He saw others doing that which he had done. He saw members of every family of the earth believing God. He saw countless numbers do his works of believing and having their belief counted for righteousness. Today, believers rejoice because we have seen that which is yet future. We rejoice as Abraham rejoiced.

The Jews had no understanding of that which Jesus said. They questioned how that Jesus could have seen Abraham. They thought His words to be nonsense because Jesus could not have witnessed something which took place before the close of Abraham's earthly life.

Jesus had not said that He saw Abraham rejoice but He responded by making it known that the constraint which the Jews placed upon Him of not yet being of fifty years of age did not apply because "Before Abraham was, I am."

I AM is the name of God (Ex 3:14); it speaks His self-existence; He is the First and the Last (Rev. 1:8). "The same was in the beginning with God" (Jn. 1:2). All the words which the Son spoke were given to Him by the Father (Jn. 12:49). God the Father proclaimed Jesus to be the self-existent God.

The Jews did not hear the voice of the self-existent God. They did not hear the voice of Him who spoke to Abraham; they did not hear the voice of Him who spoke to Moses. They heard the voice of their father who said, "Ye shall not surely die" (Gen. 3:4).

PAUL KEITH HESCHT

Paul Keith Hesch, 81, of Palm Bay, Florida, went home to be with his Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, along with being reunited with his wife, Emma Bernice, on February 13, 2024, after a short battle with pancreatic cancer.

Paul was born on May 3, 1942, in Eleanor, West Virginia, to Gale and Blanche Hesch, graduating from Buffalo High School in 1960.

In June of 1961, Paul enlisted into the U.S. Army in Ft Benning, Georgia, which led him to meet the future love of his life, Bernice, whom he married in October 1963. After completing his 3 year service to the Army, which included being on a special protective detail for then President John F Kennedy's visit to the base, Paul moved north to Ohio, where he worked for Lightning Products and Crown Rubber, while getting his 2-year degree from the then known as Terra Technical College. In 1978, he decided to become an insurance agent, going to work for Nationwide Insurance. The family lived on hot dogs and bologna sandwiches in those early years of only earning straight commissions selling insurance, but his hard work and dedication paid off, as he won several top sales awards throughout his 26 year career with Nationwide, including winning several trips to Atlantic City, Seattle and Las Vegas. After retiring in 2004, he took his wife south to Florida to retire to their dream home that he helped design. Paul and his wife lived there until she passed away in 2022 and he in 2024.

Paul, preceded in death by his wife Bernice, is survived by his sons Douglas, Palm Bay, FL, Brian (Stevie), Republic, OH; grandchildren Alison Scheiber (Alex), Bloomville, OH; Amber Hesch, Tiffin, OH; great-grandchildren Braxton and Brantley Scheiber. Siblings, Phyllis Gibson, Johnson City, TN; Peryl Thompson, Palm Bay, FL; and preceded in death by sister Jean McClain, Cross Lanes.

known, to family, for her abilities on the basketball court and never let the fact she was a woman get in her way of doing anything she set her mind to.

While most who knew her knew of her devotion to Elvis, what was not as known was her love for fishing and camping, both of which she naturally put others to shame. Pam was a killer at Stinger croquet and horseshoes and discovered later in life a joy in audiobooks and frequently scandalized the nursing home playing them out loud.

Pam had 2 daughters, Cindy Nelson-Morton (Dale) of Hurricane, and Autumn Lindley (Michael Beyrer) of Greensboro, NC to whom she devoted herself to teaching through example to be strong people and to help those you can. As such, she had her dream job helping teenagers in the Right From The Start program through the Women's Health Center in Charleston for more than 15 years.

Pam's greatest joy, though, was her 7 grandchildren: Bryant Morton (29) of Hurricane; Taylor Beyrer (26) of New York, NY; Hagen Lindley (24) of Greensboro, NC; Sean Morton (23) of Hurricane; Coleson Lindley (22) of Greensboro, NC; Andrew Lindley (19) of Greensboro, NC; and Sophia Lindley (19) of Greensboro, NC. She loved them beyond measure would do anything for them.

A Life Celebration will be held Memorial weekend.

Leap Day Editions of the Breeze Come Once Every Twenty-eight Years

By Betsy Allen
This week's issue of the Breeze is quite unique, for it has the publication date of February 29. The last time that the Breeze was published on Leap Day was in 1996. Since Leap Day only makes an appearance every four years, it takes twenty-eight years for February 29 to fall on a Thursday. The next Thursday Leap Day will not occur until the year 2052. It takes the Earth approximately 365 and a quarter days to circle around the Sun. Every four years, these quarter days add up to a full day. Leap Years ensure that the calendar system matches up with the Earth's movement around the Sun. If there were no Leap Years, the calendar would eventually stop corresponding with the seasons, and solstices and equinoxes would occur at different times.

Leap Day birthdays are quite uncommon, with less than 0.1 percent of the world's population being born on February 29. This can cause problems with some computer systems, which might not recognize February 29 as being a valid date. People born on February 29 are sometimes called "Leapers" or "Leaplings." During ordinary years, those born on Leap Day might celebrate their birthday on February 28 or March 1.

Because February 29 is such a rarity, some interesting traditions have grown up around the day. In the United Kingdom, there is an old tradition of women proposing to men on Leap Day. If a man rejected a woman's marriage proposal, he had to buy her a gift as a form of compensation. In France, the La Bougie du Sapeur, a satirical newspaper, is published only on Leap Day.

Highlights for Children magazine has posted a list of twenty-nine fun activities that families can do for Leap Day. Some of the suggestions include making frog-themed treats, leaping around for exercise, and making the number 29 an important part of activities - such as donating 29 articles of clothing to charity or planting 29 flowers.
